Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.

Keep 473 S Main St R-3 – Stop the B-1C Rezoning

A six-story apartment complex is proposed for 473 S Main (site of Lindsey Funeral Home).

To advance the project, the developer is asking City Council to rezone the site from R-3 (Medium-Density Residential — by-right up to ~35 ft / 3 stories) to B-1C (Central Business District-Conditional) and to extend Paul Street through the parcel between South Main and Liberty Streets. The property can already be redeveloped with new three-story housing under its existing R-3 zoning—no special approvals required—but the proposed six-story, high-density complex cannot be built without this B-1C rezoning.

We ask Harrisonburg City Council to deny this request in order to:

- Protect the scale and character of the neighborhood
- Keep future growth aligned with the Harrisonburg Downtown 2040 Plan
- Consider long-term impacts on traffic, parking, public services, and quality of life for neighboring residents and the broader community.

Preserving the residential zoning at 473 South Main Street sends a clear message that Harrisonburg values thoughtful, community-centered development and responsible land-use decisions.
